Chances of T.V. broadcast 'good'

MICHAEL PERKINS
Universe Staff Writer

Chances are still good that eager football fans will be able to see the WAC football showdown between BYU and the University of Utah via live television.

Afternoon KTVX-Channel 3 received permission from the NCAA to broadcast the game. The station can limit the broadcast to the 120 mile radius set by rules.

Brown, KTVX sports reporter, stated must shut down its radio stations used to strengthen its broadcast signal to stay in the 120 mile boundary.

It needs permission from the Communication Commission, the translators, and will seek permission this morning, he said.

It boils down to is whether it will allow us to pull the plug on translators and black out some of the state," Brown said.

I said the station will in legal channels of overriding the FCC rule if the FCC does not permit to shut down the translators.

It may seek a court injunction to prevent the FCC from prohibiting the station from televising the game live in the viewing area, he said.

KTVX cannot telecast the game, the air, KBYU will try to get a broadcast to be shown on television at various locations on campus.

Monsen, KBYU sports director, said is negotiating to bring a part of the game to Provo by a details of the broadcast will be settled sometime today.

Simply have to wait and see what happens on channel four's court," Monsen said.

I said the NCAA "120 mile limit to protect other college games in the area from losing the game," he said. He said no other university game is scheduled within the broadcast range of the game as the BYU-Utah contest.

Vandalism on Y campus proves costly

By KEVIN ALLAN

Additional BYU — University rivalry took on serious overtones as vandals struck at several around campus Thursday morning, hundreds of dollars in damage to university property.

Shreds from two apparently unruly groups of U of U supporters in the early morning morning, hundreds of dollars in damage to university property.

gh one group, on its way up mountain to give the block in cost of red paint, was spotted "before they could do it," Sherwood said other vandals spray-painted at least five on campus before escaping.

id said, "We caught 23 guys on their way up to paint at about 2 a.m. Officers confiscated gallons of water-soluble red paint and several wastebaskets full of rollers from the aspiring artists.

ever catch the people who hit here on campus," he added, "another story." Vandals spray-painted the U of U logo on the Administration building, the Marriott Center, and the Family Living Center, he said.

Also struck were the Faculty Office Building and the pedestrian overpass leading to the south side of the Marriott Center. "They even got a retaining wall north of the stadium that doesn't even belong to us," Sherwood said.

"The paint shop people are out all over campus," the captain said. According to Kay Christensen, paint shop supervisor, "It has taken nine men all day long, and we're still not done."

It will cost "several hundred dollars," Christensen said, to remove the red "BYU SUCKS," "UTAH TIES," and other phrases from the buildings.

The BYU Security Police is taking pains to make sure there are no more incidents like Thursday's, Sherwood said. "We'll have more people out around campus." Groups of student body officers and members of the Intercollegiate Knights will be stationed around campus, he explained, and will be in radio contact with Security Police.

BYU has not been the only school to suffer from acts of rivalry-inspired vandalism, Sherwood said. Students or supporters of BYU have transformed the block "U" at the Salt Lake University's campus into a "Y" twice in the past few weeks, he said.

"I'm not aware that there has been any defacing done to the U of U campus," commented Sherwood, who said he has been in regular contact with the U of U's campus police department.

Asked if he feels there has been an increase in the amount of vandalism associated with the BYU-U of U football rivalry, Sherwood said, "I don't think so. I'd say it's about normal. Some years we don't have too much vandalism, but other years we have more."

To prevent spreading disease

Care centers ban workers

Because of an outbreak of highly-contagious bacteria in several Utah Valley mentally handicapped care centers and schools, more than 50 ASBYU student community service workers were banned from helping the area facilities until the disease has passed.

Bill Hultenstrom, director of Student Community Services for ASBYU, said he halted 53 workers from participating in the program, "Share Love," until the outbreak of shigella is cleared up. The program provided community services for area nursing homes and handicapped children.

Hultenstrom said he expects the program to be back in operation sometime after the Thanksgiving holiday.

Shigella, a bacteria which causes dysentery, has contributed to the death of a seven-year-old Orem boy who was staying at Topham's Tiny Tots Care Center. The outbreak of the disease prompted authorities to "quarantine or curtail" activities at the affected facilities by keeping out parents and visitors.

Health officials had identified 10 cases of shigella and suspect an additional 50 to 60 Wednesday.

In an effort to combat the outbreak, State Health department officials sent a team of three investigators Thursday to "all facilities that have retarded children" and nursing homes with known cases of the sickness, said Craig Nichols, director of Communicable Disease Control in Salt Lake City.

"Of those 50 or 60 possible cases we had Wednesday — we should have 20 to 30 more cases of shigellois confirmed soon," Nichols said. "We have to separate the cases that could be caused by viruses."

Dr. Arley Flinders, Utah County Health Department director, said no more mentally handicapped facilities were put on quarantine Thursday and things were "well under control."

"The facilities will be curtailed at least until Monday," Flinders said. "We've been out testing the facilities all day and things look pretty good. As of yet we have no more reported positive cultures."

Health officials said those facilities quarantined included Topham's Tiny Tots Care Center, Hidden Hollow Rest Home, Orem Valley Care Center, the State Training School and Harrington School in American Fork. Officials refused to identify other nursing facilities quarantined.

The disease is spread by oral or fecal contamination and is especially a problem among the mentally handicapped because of their poor hygiene habits, Flinders said. Health officials are fighting the disease with antibiotics and stricter sanitary measures.

Flinders said he didn't want to call the problem a major outbreak, "but I don't want to down play its seriousness. We are considering it a major problem because of the way it could spread."

Ferguson on Policy Task Force

Urban policies discussed

By MICHAEL PERKINS
Universe Staff Writer

Provo Mayor James E. Ferguson met Thursday with members of President Ronald Reagan's transition team to offer input on the new administration's urban policies.

Ferguson said members of the Urban Advisory Task Force, made up of a dozen mayors from different parts of the country, expressed to Reagan aides concerns about problems facing cities and what help the mayors would like to receive from the new administration.

"It was primarily an input meeting, but there was discussion as to what their leanings were on the issues facing the communities," he said in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C.

Ferguson said the Reagan administration may retain a permanent urban advisory committee of mayors to assist the new president with his policies. The mayor, a Democrat, said he may continue as a member of the advisory committee to Reagan.

Ferguson said he discussed with Reagan's transition team urban problems largely overlooked by previous administrations. Problems exclusive to rapidly growing cities, small and medium-sized cities and cities in the western United States should be given special attention in Reagan's urban policies, he said.

Ferguson said he anticipated no great change from the policies begun by the Carter administration. He said Reagan felt the Carter policies needed to be more fully developed to give the cities greater assistance.

Ferguson said the task force members also asked for the administration to appoint mayors as members of the Reagan cabinet in the departments of Housing and Urban Development, Health and Human Resources and Transportation.

Ferguson said new Reagan policies will probably include greater tax incentives to encourage industries to locate in urban areas and a shift from categorical grants to more block grants that do not list federal regulations for their use.

Traditional urban programs such as revenue sharing will probably not be changed under the new administration, he said.

"I felt good about the meeting. There was good communication between the administration and the administration of many of our cities," Ferguson said. "It seemed to indicate that we will have a good relationship between the White House and our cities."

Many urban programs are oriented to large eastern cities and have ignored the problems of cities in the western states, Ferguson said. The Reagan administration will be more aware of the cities in the West, he said, because the president-elect is from California.

Most federal urban policies are aimed at aiding cities combat urban flight, he said. Ferguson said he suggested the new administration adopt plans to assist rapidly developing communities.

Sex offenders' therapy includes disco dancing

By MARCI NALDER
Universe Staff Writer

Utah State Hospital sex offenders occasionally use the Star Palace discotheque in Provo as part of their rehabilitation program of interacting with females, a hospital spokesman said.

Bryan Murdoch, Star Palace manager said he knew nothing of the patients' visits. The hospital officials said the patients have been to the discotheque twice this year.

Activities in the community for sex offenders is part of the hospital's recreational therapy program. Patients are permitted to engage in the program as they fulfill responsibilities and are cleared for off-ground outings, according to Leona Butler, charge psychiatric technician.

Mrs. Butler said the inmates are not "one-time offenders" but have a history of sexual offenses and poor social skills. "We just don't turn these patients loose in public," she said. "They are always accompanied by staff members, and they are required to keep track of each other."

Mrs. Butler said before community outings are executed, prior arrangements are almost always made with the locations of the activities. "I'm sure arrangements would be made with the Star Palace," she said.

The Star Palace management said it has yet to be contacted by the hospital.

"I have never been contacted by anyone from the State Hospital," Murdoch said. "But, as long as they are supervised it doesn't bother me." However, Murdoch said before he made a final judgement "he wanted to look into the matter."

Rodnie Ward, program director for the sex offenders, said getting the inmates out into the community is helpful to their development.

"These patients need to feel at ease around females and the best way to develop this is to set up encounters," Ward said.

Some disco goers aren't too excited about dancing with a former sex offender.

"I wouldn't feel very safe going there (Star Palace) if I knew sexual offenders were there," said Jill Johnson, a freshman from Spanish Fork majoring in musical theater. "I would think twice about going there again."

BYU coeds contacted, who occasionally attend Star Palace, expressed surprise and disagreement with the hospital's policy of escorting sexual offenders there.

"I would be offended and would not feel particularly safe knowing sexual offenders were at the Star Palace when I was," said Marlina Johnson, a sophomore majoring in political science from San Francisco, Calif.

'Gang of Four' trial begins

PEKING — Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, the once-powerful leader of the radical "Gang of Four," walked calmly into court Thursday and with nine other defendants heard charges they persecuted nearly 35,000 people to death and brought "untold disasters" to China. Her composure deserted her during the reading of the charges and she broke into tears, Chinese reporters said.

The long-awaited trial of China's most publicized "Gang," as well as six members of the "Lin Biao clique," got under way before 35 judges and 880 invited observers, most coming from Peking's central square. The 10 could face death sentences if convicted.

Seven minutes of film of the trial were shown on Chinese television, with promises of more detailed coverage in the days ahead. Foreign reporters were barred on grounds state secrets would be discussed.

It was the first public look at the defendants since their imprisonment from four to nine years ago.

'Iran to fight until Iraqis out'

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iran claimed successes Thursday on three key battle fronts in its war with Iraq, saying it had pushed Iraqi forces out of three areas, saying Iraqis will fight until the Iraqis are driven out of Iran.

Iran said its forces continued counter-attacking Iraqi positions near Mehran, a border town in the central section of the 300-mile-long border, near Susangerud, 150 miles to the south, and Ahadon, 85 miles south of Susangerud.

Tehran Radio quoted President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr as saying: "As long as Iraqi armed force are present in Iran, we cannot consider any peace proposal."

Bani-Sadr met with U.N. Secretary General Waldheim's personal envoy, Olof Palme, a former prime minister of Sweden, who expressed U.N. concern over the consequences of continued warfare, the Iranian news agency Pars reported.

Palme also met with Iran's prime minister, Mohammad Ali Rajai, and will visit the war zone in oil-rich Khuzestan on Friday, Pars said.

The state-run radio quoted Rajai as saying: "I told him the question was one of aggression against Iran, which should be taken seriously. I told him the world should put (Iraqi President) Saddam (Hussein) on trial."

The agency said Palme described his meetings as "informative, constructive and useful." It said he will visit Baghdad on Saturday.

Hussein has said his troops will not withdraw from more than 8,000 square miles of war-conquered Iranian territory unless Iran recognizes Iraq's right to disputed border lands and full sovereignty over the 120-mile-long Shatt al-Arab estuary that separates the two countries and is Iraq's only sea outlet.

Four security officers arrested

LOGAN, Utah — Arraignment is scheduled Tuesday for three Utah State University security officers and one former officer charged in what authorities say was a string of thefts on the campus dating back nearly three years.

The four were arrested Wednesday following a joint investigation by the Utah Attorney General's office and the Logan Police Department.

Arrested were Walter R. Van Moorlehen, 45; Donald Andrew Berquist, 22; Gary Spillet, 37; and former security officer Robert Jack Hansen, 19.

The arrest warrants were issued in 2nd Circuit Court where the arraignment is scheduled Tuesday.

Logan Police Chief Ferris Groll said the USU administration contacted the attorney general's office after receiving information that USU security personnel may be involved in campus thefts.

Groll said his office joined the investigation two weeks ago.

The complaints charge Spillet with five third-degree felony counts, four alleging theft and one burglary. He also was charged with five misdemeanor counts.

The felony charges against Spillet allege theft of cash from the university library and two other buildings and theft of property from the university bookstore.

To oversee Democrats

Republicans arrive in D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP)

President-elect Ronald Reagan's representatives are looking over the Carter administration's shoulder, hoping to have a say in how billions of federal dollars will be spent before the Republicans take control of the White House.

Reagan transition leaders at the key government departments also are trying to keep track of several thousand Carter political appointees who may try to go underground into the civil service where they would be protected from ouster by the new president.

One area where the Reagan people have been granted a say is at the Energy Department, which is in the midst of committing $5 billion from the 1981 budget to finance synthetic fuel production through loans and loan guarantees to private companies.

Reagan's aides say their main role is to be kept abreast of what the current administration is doing to pave the way for an orderly transfer of power. Until Reagan is sworn in Jan. 20, the Carter administration is the only official government with authority over the federal budget and other policy matters, the Reagan aides say.

But the transition leaders acknowledge they don't want to be just passive observers. They are seeking pre-inaugural input on some governmental matters, particularly on how money is spent from the 1981 budget, which Reagan has vowed repeatedly to trim.

"As a general policy, we want them (Carter administration) to make a minimum number of decisions that lock us in place," said one transition official, who did not want to be named.

The Energy Department's $5 billion synthetic fuel program is one of the biggest single budget items and an obvious target for proposed cutbacks by Reagan. Although the president-elect has not formulated a specific policy on this program, he opposes the idea of federal subsidies to energy companies for anything other than modest grants for research and development.

The agency said Wednesday it was awarding $1.5 billion in loan guarantees for a plant to make synthetic gas from coal in North Dakota. Reagan aides said they were told in advance about the award, which had been in the works for months, enjoyed strong bipartisan support in Congress and had their own blessings.

As for the remaining $3.5 billion, officials will consult with Reagan aides before issuing loans, Carter and Reagan people say.

Reagan's advance teams also try to be informed about any planned job changes involving an estimated 3,000 political appointees who are sure to be replaced if they stay in their present positions.

It is a common practice when another political party takes over the White House for the outgoing appointees to find career positions that offer job security under civil service rules. It also is a common practice for the incoming administration to try to identify these "noles" to make sure they don't go unnoticed in jobs where they could frustrate efforts to implement new programs.

Reagan transition teams, which began to set up the major department responses from the Carter administration generally have had positive.

Air pollution plagues Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The state of Idaho remained under an air stagnation alert Thursday. The city of Boise had clearly visible air pollution problems.

But inside a legislative committee hearing room, there wasn't much real support for a proposal designed to cut air pollution in the state's capital city.

A legislative committee voted 3-1 to urge the upcoming session of the Legislature to pass law giving counties authority to impose penalties on automobiles inspections for emissions. The proposal was backed by local government leaders, who said it was one way to clean up Boise's automobile-polluted air.

But it appears unlikely the proposal will get through the Legislature.

"It could be a little tough," said Chairman Ken Bradshaw, R-Wendell, who voted against the proposal.

"I don't think people would approve it," said Bill Gratton, an Ada County commissioner who supported the proposal. He said if given a vote, he didn't think people would back an inspection plan that could wind up costing motorists both for the inspection and for repairs to fix problems. The two state legislators who argued the strongest for the recommendation, State Sen. Ken Robison, D-Boise, and Rep. Roger Guernsey, D-Boise, were both defeated in the general election earlier this month.

The judge acted after several days of hearing testimony from inmates, who complained of harassment and physical abuse by guards.

Prison relocates inmates

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Some 15 inmates of the Idaho State Penitentiary were removed from maximum security cells Wednesday night at the order of Magistrate Judge Robert McConnell.

The judge acted after several days of hearing testimony from inmates, who complained of harassment and physical abuse by guards.

Wednesday night, 15 inmates were transferred to close custody instead of maximum security, Warden Darrol Gardner said.

That means the inmates will march to meals with other prisoners and will not be fed in their cells. Inmates in close confinement also number assigned to work crews, he said.

"We'd already cleared most of them out of max," said Gardner. "There were just about 15 left and we moved them to the A and B Wings of the Number 9 cellblock last night."

Some 23 inmates joined in an appeal to the district court. They claimed they were improperly put in maximum security after the July 23-24 prison riot.

Gardner said the action involved most of the complaints raised by the inmates.

program and explain to students how appreciative we are of their good attitude," Anderson said.

Anderson said that certain places on campus were worse than other places for vandalism, but preferred not to say where those places are. "If students knew where the bad places were, they would make them worse," he said.

Anderson said that students could also help in stopping vandalism by reporting any acts of vandalism they see to BYU Security Police.

"We work hand-in-hand with them. Students need to call them immediately, and students also need to realize it costs the university and them money to repair damages to the campus," Anderson said.

Ward said community bowling, movies and other entertainment activities are engaged in by staff, volunteers and patients. "We've never had any problems with these community recreational activities," he said.

Mrs. Butler said the sexual-offender program used by the St. Joe Hospital is relatively new and has proved quite successful. She said the program was written three years ago by a group of sexual offenders.

"Of those that have completed the program," said Ward, "there have been no repeat offenders so far." Ward said the program is a very challenging one.

The program involves seven levels of achievement and each level must be earned through proper handling of responsibilities, according to Mrs. Butler. She said if patients make mistakes they can, and often do, lose one or more levels which need to be re-earned.

One of the privileges earned as patients move up the levels is off-ground recreational therapy.

"We try to simulate social encounters within hospital grounds using BYU volunteers and others, but it still is not like the outside," said Mrs. Butler.

She said if the patients did not have any practice interacting with the outside community, they would have extreme difficulty in adjusting when released.

"We not only need to protect our patients, but we also try to protect the community," Mrs. Butler said. "Patients never enter the community without staff accompaniment."

Mrs. Butler explained incarceration at the State Hospital is often the alternative to serving prison time. She said prison never cures sexual offenders, but only keeps them off the streets for awhile.

Ferguson, representing the smallest city on the task force, told the transition team the exclusive problems of small and medium-sized communities have been ignored in the past. He recommended policies be adopted by the new administration for cities of all sizes.

Ferguson said he will receive a document prepared from the suggestions given the President-elect's aides delineating the new administration's urban policies. He said he will be able to offer further input to Reagan's policies as he receives the ideas of the transition team.

Firing squad

Hi-Fi killers get death sentence again

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A judge Thursday scheduled Dec. 30 execution dates for two men convicted in the 1974 torture-murders of three persons at the Ogden Hi-Fi Shop. It was their sixth death date in as many years.

Second District Judge John Wahlquist scheduled the firing squad executions for Pierre Dale Selby, 27, and William Andrews, 26. Both were airmen at nearby Hill Air Force Base when they were arrested.

An attorney for Andrews filed an application for a stay of execution later Thursday and a spokeswoman for U.S.

District Judge David Winder in Salt Lake City said a hearing on the application was scheduled for Dec. 4. Selby's attorney was expected to file a similar request.

Wahlquist told the pair they could choose either hanging or death by firing squad in conformance with state law. An attorney for Andrews protested the choice, saying it constituted cruel and unusual punishment.

Wahlquist chose the firing squad for them when the two expressed no preference.

Selby, formerly known as Dale S. Pierre, Brooklyn, N.Y., and An-draws, Jonesboro, La., have been on death row at Utah State Prison while their attorneys have filed numerous appeals.

They showed no emotion when Wahlquist scheduled the executions.

"There's no good reason why an execution date should not be imposed at this time," the judge said. He had told the two men they could stand or sit to hear sentencing and they remained seated.

Tim Ford, attorney for Andrews, and Selby's attorney, Gil Athay, argued that a new death date would serve no purpose because they planned to file a notice of appeal in federal court for a writ of habeas corpus aimed at getting a new trial.

Ford said Andrews was 19 at the time of his arrest and "he's a different man now."

Dead Center

By JOHN JACKSON

Everybody says I should run an attraction. So I'll run it.

I mean a retraction.

First we were told the basketball game would be played Nov. 25, BYU against the Czechoslovakia.

Then the Czechs were turned into Poles, then the game was moved up to Nov. 21.

Finally, to top it all off, one day before the game should be played The Daily Universe switches the game from Friday to Saturday. (We ran a picture of Danny Ainge. The cutlines said the game was Saturday. It should have said Friday.)

I feel bad about that. No, the game will not be played in the two hours between the warm-up band and the Doolies themselves. Nor will the Doolies play at halftime.

You'll have to admit it would be funky if they could perform simultaneously. Trumbo will be ripping down the court for a dunk while the Doolies scream out "Rocking under the Highway."

The game is Friday.

Now, about the Utah football game on Sunday - pardon - Saturday. Isn't it funny that the Utes are planning their biggest pep rally ever at BYU is planning zilch, not a thing?

By the way, I ran across the Ute Fight Song. It goes like this:

Hang it in your ear,
Drop it down your nose.
Roll it up your sleeves,
Or smear it on your clothes.
It's a goober.
Hide it in your hair,
Or right behind your ear.
Shove it in your eye,
Or drink it with a beer.
It's a goober.
You can stretch it, you can twist it.
You can roll it in a ball.
Give it to a girlfriend,
Or hang it on the wall.
It's a loogie.
It's a Utah loogie.

Cougars vs Utah Utes

By DIANNE FLOWER
Universe Sports Writer

It's the biggest game of the year.

If BYU wins, the Cougars will take the WAC crown for the fifth consecutive year. If Utah wins, the Utes could capture the WAC title, provided they win against San Diego next week.

Not forgetting the fierce rivalry between BYU and the University of Utah, sportswriters have billed it as contest between BYU's passing game and Utah's defensive backs. Certainly, the Utes' defensive line is formidable.

All-WAC first teamer and honorable mention All-America Jeff Griffin is back for his senior year. "There is no question that he (Griffin) is the best cornerback in the West and one of the best in the country," said Utah's Coach Wayne Howard.

Coach Edwards said most BYU games are contests between BYU's passing and the other team's defensive line. "This is going to be a very tough game, but if our offensive line is good and protects Jim (McMahon), we'll be in pretty good shape," Edwards said.

Utah's season record stands at five wins, three losses and one tie. The Utes lost their first two games to Boise State, 28-7, and to Nebraska, 55-9. BYU lost the first game of the season to New Mexico, 25-21, but has since gone on to nine consecutive wins.

The Utes were idle last week, while BYU battled Colorado State. "It's been nice having two weeks to prepare for the game," Howard said. "Our main concern is containing McMahon, keeping him in the pocket and not allowing him to move." Tomorrow's game could also be billed as a contest of passing efficiency. Both McMahon and Ute quarterback Ricky Hardin have completed more than 60 percent of their passes. "McMahon has completed 64 percent of his passes, with Hardin close behind at 61 percent," said Bruce Woodbury, University of Utah's sports information director.

"McMahon is a tremendous passer and can move if the situation calls for it," said Woodbury. McMahon is known for his scrambling out on the field, he continued.

Ricky Hardin is also a good passer. "Hardin is not quite as good as McMahon in passing, but he's very accurate," said Woodbury.

"Physically, Hardin is a little bigger and might have a little more strength in his arm. But both quarterbacks are very good passers," he continued.

Of BYU's team, Howard said "BYU has a good, well-balanced team. They have done it in three key areas, offense, defense and kicking."

"In order to win the game tomorrow, we have to maintain good ball control," he added.

Tickets for seats at the game have been sold out. But there are standing-room-only tickets available, according to Utah's Sports Information. These tickets will cost $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for high school students. The prices are the regular general admission charge. Standing-room-only tickets will be available Saturday at 1:20 p.m. at the Rice Stadium ticket office.

Chargers over Dolphins 27-24

MIAMI — An interception by linebacker Woodrow Lowe set up a 23-yard field goal by Rolf Benirschke with 7:46 left in overtime to give the San Diego Chargers a 27-24 National Football League victory over the Miami Dolphins in a nationally televised game Thursday night.

San Diego won the toss and received the kickoff in overtime but was forced to punt. However, Lowe picked off a pass from rookie Miami quarterback David Woodley at the Dolphins' 40-yard line and ran it back 28 yards to the 12.

Jones recalls expulsion of Griffin in 1979 game

By ROB SWENSON
Universe Staff Writer

As BYU and the University of Utah gear up for this Saturday's game, perhaps BYU wide receiver Lloyd Jones has second thoughts about facing Utah defensive back Jeff Griffin.

Recalling last year's BYU-Utah game at Cougar Stadium, Jones remembers the incident that took place between the two athletes. Griffin, an all-WAC cornerback, was ejected from the game early in the first half after intentionally striking Jones with his fist. BYU went on to win the game 27-0.

"It was really nothing at all," Jones said. "You know how defensive backs don't like being blocked. Well, I ran downfield and threw a good block on him and jarred him up a bit. Then all of a sudden he turned around and hit me in the head with his fist."

"If he really wanted to hurt me he should have hit me somewhere else but the helmet. The ref was right on top of the play and immediately threw his flag and told Griffin he was out of the game. Griffin questioned the call and started bad-mouthing the ref. It was as simple as that."

Jones and Griffin later crossed paths in the off-season and Jones recalls that Griffin didn't seem to remember the incident. "I saw him at a track meet in Idaho and I don't think he remembered taking a strike at me," Jones said. "All he said was 'How's it going, superstar?' and that was it."

Jones said nobody would believe him when asked if he had provoked Griffin to strike him. "My wife didn't even believe that all I did was make a good block on him."

Jones said he is confident about this Saturday's game against the Utes. "They're a good team, and they could upset us if we're not careful," he said. "Personally, I'd like to run the score up. I don't think they deserve to represent the WAC as conference champions," Jones said.

Soccercats to play final with Gonzaga

The BYU Soccercats will take on Gonzaga University of Spokane, Wash., Friday at 3 p.m., in their final intercollegiate game of the season.

The Cougars need three more goals to reach the 100 mark for goals scored this season. They will enter the game with a 16-11-4 record.

Coming from the Northwest Intercollegiate Soccer League, Gonzaga has compiled a 12-6-1 record this season.

The game will be played at Haws Field, and admission is free.

Scorecard

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Women's basketball coach Courtney Leishman cleared his bench in a non-conference season opener against Weber State Wednesday night while watching his Cougars roll up an 80 to 71 score against the Wildcats in Ogden.

Cougar forward Jackie Reese McBride, American Sports Foundation basketball champion last year, sparked the victory by posting a game high of 21 points, 19 of them scored in the second half.

McBride also recorded 10 rebounds, six steals and five assists.

Gymnastics fans will have their first opportunity to view the 1980-81 edition of Coach Wayne Young's gymnasts when the Cougars square off in intrasquad competition Saturday at 6 p.m. in 149 SFH.

This year's squad is headed by All-American Masahito Kuno, who captured first place last week in the All-American All-Around Invitational with 53.7 points. Josh Vitek, another All-American, will be performing on the still rings.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

The women's volleyball team will compete for a berth in the AIAW National Championships today and Saturday in Fort Collins, Colo., in the AIAW Region VII Championships.

BYU tied for second place in the Intermountain Athletic Conference with Utah, but because Utah defeated BYU, the Cougars are seeded number 3 in the tournament.

"We're peaking in our play at just about the right time," BYU Coach Elaine Michalski said. "We're playing good ball. The tournament should go well for us. Since we're playing the best teams, we have to play our best."

SWIMMING

If the early season trend is any kind of indication, BYU swimming coach Tim Powers might be inclined to turn in his coach's whistle for a doctor's bag.

With the year's dual opener against the University of Alberta scheduled for Saturday at 11 a.m. in the RB pool, Powers' swimming roster is beginning to look like a hospital report, as several of his athletes are doubtful participants because of various injuries or illness.

These swimmers and one diver are questionable performers not only for Saturday's competition, but for later in the season.

MANAGER OF YEAR

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Martin, the firebrand of the Oakland A's, who led an almost anonymous team to a remarkable second-place finish, was named American League Manager of the Year for the third time by The Associated Press today.

Martin was an overwhelming choice in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, receiving 400 1/2 votes to 108 for runner-up Jim Frey, who took the Kansas City Royals to the American League pennant in his first year on the job.

Cougars, Poles to battle tonight

By SPENCER
CHRISTENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

For its first real outing of the season, the varsity Cougar basketball team will take on the Polish National Team tonight in the Marriott Center, officials said.

"We will use various combinations against Poland," said head coach Frank Arnold. "This game will provide us with experience and a chance to work out some things before going into actual competition. For instance, it is important for us to play in front of a big crowd so we can get the nervousness out of our team's system."

According to officials in the Marriott Center Ticket Office, tickets for the 7:30 p.m. game are nearly sold out. Any remaining tickets will go on sale at 6 p.m. tonight at the Marriott Center northeast ticket office, and will cost $1 for students with activity cards.

Poland's National Team, on a 14-game tour of the United States, has won only two of the nine games played so far, defeating Kent State and Clemson.

In their play against foreign national teams, the Cougars are 2-2, having lost two games to Yugoslavia but defeating the Australian and Soviet teams.

According to Arnold, the players starting against the Poles will not necessarily be his starting five for the season, which officially opens Nov. 28 at Washington.

Makeup of the starting five is yet to be determined, said Arnold. Three of the opening slots for today's game have been filled, but positions for a guard and a forward are as yet undecided, he said.

The Poles represent the fifth foreign country the Cougars will have played under the direction of Arnold.

Cager lineup shows promise

By ROB SWENSON
Universe Staff Writer

Although the Cougars lost some fine players from last year's championship squad (Alan Taylor, Scott Runia and Devin Durrant), returning lettermen have been working during the summer to improve their skills, and the coaching staff has picked up some promising recruits and walk-ons.

Here's a brief rundown on the Cougar players.

Fred Roberts, 6-10 junior from Riverton, Utah, is predicted to be BYU's next player to make All-America status. Roberts has added much to the Cougars since joining the squad in 1978, when as a freshman forward he started in all games, averaging 14.3 points and 6.8 rebounds.

He received WAC player of the week honors when BYU defeated Colorado State and Wyoming, wins which guaranteed the Cougars the conference championship.

Last year, Roberts averaged 12.9 points and 6.1 rebounds per game. As for 1980-81, "I'm psyched up for the season," he said.

Steve Craig, 6-3 guard and communications major from Los Angeles, is one of two seniors with the Cougars - the other is Danny Ainge. Craig came to BYU after lettering four years in high school baseball, basketball, football and volleyball.

Like Roberts, Craig started as a freshman, playing all games and averaging 6.3 points per game. He averaged 5.6 points last year and 1.4 off the board.

Now in his third year as a varsity team member, Steve Trumbo, a 6-8 forward/center and business major from Santa Ana, Calif., is best known for his rebounding ability. Trumbo is also known for his talents as a slam-dunk specialist. "He is an outstanding rebounder," said Coach Frank Arnold, "and he is shooting better this season."

Greg Ballif, 6-3 guard and junior in public relations from Provo, is considered one of the most fierce competitors and most inspirational players on the team. As a freshman, he averaged 5.0 points per game and saw action in the majority of the 1977-78 games.

Foot surgery forced him to redshirt during the 1978-79 season. Ballif is optimistic about this year's team. "It's really hard to tell just how good you are going to be until you play. We lost some good players last year, but have many good players to replace them," he said.

Mike Maxwell, a 6-1 guard and sophomore hailing from Salt Lake City, will redshirt this season, because of a recent knee injury. Maxwell came to BYU after lettering four years in high school baseball, basketball, football and volleyball.

Craig Christensen, 6-4 1/2 guard and junior from Salt Lake City majoring in English, is returning after redshirting last season because of knee surgery. "I feel great about this year," Christensen said. "We are really going to surprise quite a few people, I think."

Since joining the Cougars in 1975, Christensen has added much to the success of the team. He is in his third season on the varsity team.

Greg Kite, at 6-11 and 250 pounds, is one of the biggest players on the team this year. Many have wondered if Kite will be able to fill the vacancy left by ex-BYU center Alan Taylor. Coach Arnold said Kite has the potential to be one of the most outstanding centers ever at BYU. Waiting in the shadow of Taylor, however, he saw little action last year, averaging only 6.6 minutes playing time per game.

Dave McGuire, a towering 7-footer and junior from West Covina, Calif., majoring in public relations, is bigger, stronger, and faster than he was two years ago. A motorcycle accident kept him from playing last year. McGuire has played in 35 games for BYU since joining the team in 1977. He has averaged 2.1 points and 2.1 rebounds per game.

Gary Furniss, a sophomore from Driggs, Idaho, and transfer student from Utah State University, promises to be another key factor for BYU. At Utah State, Furniss helped the Aggies achieve a 21-7 record and secure a berth to the NIT invitational. At 6-8, Furniss will be playing forward.

Timo Saarelainen (Team-on, Sar-u-han-LINE-nn), a freshman from Helsinki, Finland, is considered one of Finland's finest athletes. Saarelainen played high school basketball in Helsinki and later became a starter on the Finnish Olympic team. "I feel good to be here at BYU," Timo said.

Richie Webb, a freshman majoring in business from Idaho Falls, Idaho, is the youngest player on this year's team and shows outstanding ability in both basketball and baseball. In high school he averaged 17.4 points and 9.2 rebounds per game. Webb is 6-4 and plays guard.

Dave Challis, 6-4 guard and sophomore business major from Walnut Creek, Calif., is a walk-on to this year's team. "It's a challenge to be a walk-on, but a great opportunity," Challis said. Challis played high school basketball for Northgate High School and junior varsity ball for BYU.

John Bartholomew, a 6-6 forward and a freshman majoring in computer science, is also a walk-on to the Cougar squad. Bartholomew played high school basketball at Woodrow Wilson High in Portland, Ore.

Fall Engineering Graduates

Texas Instruments in Ridgecrest, California is a great place to work.

And to play.

If you like the great outdoors, you'll love this small California community where traffic jams and smog are as uncommon as tough winters. You can ski, camp, backpack or hunt in the nearby Sierra Mountains. Boat on a lake just 50 miles away. Or ride a motorcycle or dunebuggy in the desert sands.

All while you're working in the relaxed, informal environment of our Ridgecrest, California plant. You'll work in state-of-the-art electronics in one of the following areas:

- Electrical engineers will be involved in product design and development; digital and analog circuits and systems; microwave circuits and systems; wide band video processing; high-speed digital computers; broad band RF circuits; or support or operational software development.
- Mechanical engineers will work in thermal/heat transfer analysis; or high-density electronic packaging for avionics systems for tactical aircraft.

All positions require a BS, MS, EE, or ME and U.S. citizenship.

Send your resume in complete confidence to: Alice Johnson/1402 N. Norma St./Ridgecrest, CA 93555.

Women's team getting prepared

By MARILYN HANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Although women's basketball Coach Courtney M. Leishman acknowledged that a fourth straight league championship will be difficult to accomplish, he said a rigorous pre-season schedule should help to prepare the team for competition.

"By January, we're going to be a good basketball team. We've got a tough pre-season schedule to help us in that department," he said.

The head coach sees tough competition coming this year from Utah State, which has five returning starters, and the New Mexico and Wyoming squads.

Quicker team

Leishman described the women's team as generally quicker than teams of recent memory.

"With the loss of Tina Gunn, our transition game will be faster, and we'll be more aggressive on defense. Since we will be without a big person in the middle, there will be more pressing on our part, and more effort to keep the ball away from the inside."

Even with the pre-season schedule about to begin, the coach is not sure who will be in the starting lineup.

"Maybe by midseason we might have a top five, six or seven that we will be going with most of the time, but right now we are talking about a team of 12 players. Until we have game experience, we're going to run it this way," he said.

According to Leishman, three of the five starting spots will most likely be filled by returning players. They are Jackie Beene McBride, a physical education major from Sunset, Utah; Jeanette Weston, a pre-med major from Huntington Beach, Calif.; and Jennifer Cox, a junior from Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. McBride, a 6-1 junior, has a long list of accomplishments, including all-conference and all-region teams, and all-tournament teams for the Region VII Championships and the Copper Classic. She has been among the league leaders in scoring, field goal percentage, assists and blocked shots. She was among the top 20 in the nation in free throw percentage, for several weeks last year.

Returning players

Mrs. McBride scored more than 25 points in six games last year, helping to make her the second leading all-time woman scorer at BYU. Her career best for a single game is 30 points, which she scored during last year's overtime win over St. Johns.

She is eighth on the all-time rebound list.

Miss Weston, a 5-11 junior, was among the league leaders in free throw percentage and assists. Best beginning

Memory of Cosic lives in Cougar hearts

Kresimir Cosic was a star for the Cougars under coach Stan Watts.

By SPENCER CHRISTENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

In case you're a bit behind in the news, Yugoslavia's Olympic basketball team won gold at Moscow this summer. And in case you didn't know, a major force behind that win was Kresimir Cosic, one of BYU's all-time greats on the court.

Cosic - the very name means BYU basketball, and brings back memories of a 6-11 center BYU fans loved.

Cosic played for the Cougar varsity team from 1971 to 1973, being named to All-Conference teams each year. He also led the Cougars to WAC championships in 1971 and 1972.

The Yugoslavian hero was recruited by BYU after former coaches Stan Watts and Pete Witbeck saw him play at the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City. "We didn't let up," said Witbeck. "It took a full year of letters and phone calls." Another Yugoslav at BYU, tennis Coach Simi Nickolic, with the help of his brother in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, assisted in recruiting.

Sneak away

Once he decided to come to BYU, Cosic was faced with another problem. Yugoslavian authorities didn't want him to leave, said Witbeck, now BYU assistant athletic director. But while on a road trip with his team in Naples, Italy, Cosic got on a plane for the United States.

"If Cosic had been a soccer player, he would have never gotten out," said Witbeck. "He would have been guarded too closely."

While at BYU, Cosic captured the hearts of fans with his personality and style. Even though he is a towering 6-11, it was not unusual to see Cosic dribble the ball the length of the court during games. "Cosic always played with a smile on his face," said Witbeck. "No one could do it like Cosic. He could really win over the crowds."

In addition to being chosen to the All-WAC team three straight years, Cosic was also a first team All-American. After graduating, he was drafted by the Los Angeles Lakers but turned down the money offers of professional basketball. "He wasn't interested in the money," said Witbeck.

His conversion to the LDS Church helped him achieve other goals, Witbeck said.

"When Cosic first came to BYU, he was almost an agnostic; but after being here for a while, he joined the church," said Witbeck. Cosic returned to Yugoslavia to play basketball and, in his own way, promote the cause of the LDS Church there.

Welcomed back
Even though Cosic had left Yugoslavia without permission, authorities were glad to have him back. He brought needed experience and skill to the country.

Cosic led his Yugoslavian National Team to second place in the 1976 Montreal Olympics and to a gold medal in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow. He has been a national hero in his country.

Cosic has assisted in translating the Bible from the Croatian (the language of Yugoslavians) into the English language. Cosic continued his basketball effort in Yugoslavia, playing the national team coaching others.

For more information call 571-0124.

When the Nevada legislature began the rebellion 1975 by passing a law claiming jurisdiction over federal lands in that state, Sagebrush Rebels believed they would have to take their fight to the courts. "At the time, that seemed the most realistic solution," Harmer said.

But since the Republican victories in the November elections, "the majority is now basically sympathetic," he said. "A much more beneficial solution is to go to the Congress" to get control turned over to the states, he said.

Opponents of the Sagebrush Rebellion argue that western states would find themselves unable to manage the vast amounts of federal land in their borders and would sell the land to private interests.

Varsity team to be selected

Now that the intramural College Bowl tournament is over, Todd Britsch, coach of the BYU varsity College Bowl team, is busy selecting this year's division.

Britsch indicated that BYU will travel with a five-member team, four players and one alternate. He said that eight students will be on the team so as to make it possible to practice in a match-like situation.

BYU does not play a lot of College Bowl matches. The only competition BYU is involved in is the regional tournament, which includes the intermountain schools. It is a double elimination setup, with the winner advancing to the national finals.

According to Britsch, this year's regionals will be held in Tucson, Ariz., sometime in the month of February. The nationals will be in May.

Britsch sees the University of Utah as the team to beat in the regionals this year. "Utah will be extremely tough this year. They are playing with three former BYU players, a law student, a medical student, and an undergraduate transfer student," Britsch said.

Momentum is the name of this game, according to Britsch. "It's a game of momentum; a good team can be defeated just because it can't get going. A team that is not as good could be way behind at the half, get the momentum and come back and win. You can never tell what is going to happen," Britsch said.

Though the College Bowl is a general knowledge test, Britsch looks for specialists. "I need at least one history buff and one literature buff on the team. It is general knowledge, but so many questions come from these two areas," he indicated.

The varsity team practices two or three times a week. "We go over 5,000 old questions that have been used before and I make up a bunch of new questions that I feel would be relevant," Britsch said.

Britsch noted that even those who were not involved in the tournament have a chance to make the varsity team. They should contact Britsch and he will set up a time to meet with him.

Turner film featured

Lana Turner stars in this week's Film Society movie to be shown Friday and Saturday night in 440 MAREB. Admission for each of the 6, 7 and 8 p.m. single feature showings is 60 cents, said Mark Greenhalgh, director of Film Society.

Released in 1966, "Madame X" stars Lana Turner, John Forsythe, Constance Bennett, Ricardo Montalban and Burgess Meredith. The film was directed by David Lowell Rich and produced by Ross Hunter.

"Madame X" is a tear-jerker tale of an attorney who defends a woman charged with murder while not knowing that she is his mother," said Teresa Zickefoose, writer-researcher for Film Society.

There are five other versions of this film, Miss Zickefoose said.

"There are two silent versions filmed in 1915 and 1920," she said. "MGM studios filmed versions of this movie in 1929 and 1937, and in 1955 there was a British production called 'Trial of Madame X.'"

Senate committee claims oil supplies could be disrupted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should begin preparing immediately for a major disruption of imported oil supplies sometime in the next decade, the Senate Energy Committee said Thursday.

The country urgently needs to build up its oil reserves, and agreements for handling a cutoff should be worked out with other industrialized nations to prevent severe strain on the free-world alliance, "according to a new report from the committee."

The current U.S. emphasis on reducing imports is unrealistic, the report said, because energy self-sufficiency "is highly unlikely within this century, let alone within the next 10 years."

"We will have to run in order to stand still," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the panel, said in releasing the study.

The United States will be importing large amounts of oil by 1990, even if domestic producers go all out to find new oil and natural gas reserves and develop other energy sources, the report said.

And without sufficient reserves, a major disruption could force the United States into a panicked world market, it said.

Noting that the political deals made in such a market could threaten the relationships among industrialized nations, the report urged that agreements be worked out by the United States, its European allies and Japan for action in the event of a major disruption.

The links "between energy, the economy and national security will govern national policy in the 1980s," Jackson said.

Release of the report — the result of a year-long investigation into international implications of the energy shortage — marked a kind of last hurrah for Democrats on the committee, which will be controlled by Republicans when the new Congress convenes in January.

At the news conference held to issue the report, Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure, who will become committee chairman next year, said he disagreed with many of its findings.

The report, "The Geopolitics of Oil," said all industrialized nations, including the United States, will be affected by a major disruption whether or not they are dependent on others for oil.

A minority report from committee Republicans said, "It would be a serious mistake ... for the United States to place its reliance upon foreign policy as the principal means of defending the United States from our foreign petroleum vulnerability."

'Star Child' aimed at Y

By MARA CALLISTER
Asst. Entertainment Editor

When the assistant director of the "Saturday's Warrior" sequel offered me six inches of standing room to review "Star Child," I sulked, wanting to plead claustrophobia and run home.

But the show stopped me — it works. Even with a bare stage and two-thirds freshman cast, the musical is a worthwhile investment for the money.

Warning: it contains BYU clichés, it presents stereotype female characters; and it perpetrates Mormon myths not recognized by LDS leaders. But the script is funny, the acting deliciously well done and the music on par with "Saturday's Warrior."

The plot tells the love story of Chuck and Marie and Wally Kestler.

When Kestler and his best friend, companion Greene, move into Moroni's Mansion in Provo, Greene meets "evil" spirit Mita! and Kestler meets a smoking, drinking, inactive Chuck, who is losing his righteous girlfriend, Marie. Kestler, who sees the candy-coated Marie, falls in love at first sight and determines to spiritually renovate Chuck so that the fallen "Star Child" will go on a mission, leaving Marie to Kestler. Chuck, played by Alan Hallmark, also has a mission to find his best pre-earth friend, Larry, played by George Low.

After kissing her, an inactive Mormon, Chuck, played by sophomore Alan Hallmark, tries to tempt Marie, played by freshman Tracy Stout, into marriage.

The worth of the show is in its irony. The greatest line, raising one of several Mormon problems voiced but not solved in the show, comes from Candy, a 21-year-old coed played by Carla Crane.

Wondering why she is going on a mission, Candy says, "Do you really think I would pick a mission over a marriage if I had that option?"

On the humorous side, the show contains a pack of dateless girls very aggressively on the "man hunt." I thought they were back in third grade chasing boys into the "Kootie pot" when, in the tiny Margetts Arena Theater, the girls made a running attack on Kestler, overpowering the room with high pitched screams.

But nevertheless, "Star Child" will be around for a long time.

Christmas play perfect

By KIM KAATMAN
Entertainment Editor

Joy! Joy! "A Christmas Carol" is the finest gift anyone could give at the beginning of this Yuletide season. It is the perfect Christmas play.

The actors and actresses of this BYU Theater Production were beautifully wrapped in costumes designed by Brad Loman of Los Angeles. Materials, textures and colors worked together with the actors and actresses to produce, above all, a most beautiful Ghost of Christmas Past, a most adorable Ghost of Christmas Present, and an ever dismal Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come.

Placed carefully on a set that was both functional and creative, the cast had the physical freedom to move on and off unencumbered, and the imaginative freedom to be the props themselves in addition to being believable, wonderful characters.

Carefully wrapped, and placed on a well designed set the cast of "A Christmas Carol" performed their parts with a professionalism that is sure to bring them highest honors at the American College Theatre Festival XIII.

The cast, crew, and director are as perfect as the message the communicate. All involved will receive their reward.

Good Christian Men Rejoice with heart and soul and voice Now Ye hear of Endless Bliss "A Christmas Carol" is a play you can't afford to miss!

New play provides 'learning experience'

By CARLA A. SCHIEVE
Universe Staff Writer

"Outside In," a new play, deals with the way two opposing generations come together at the death of a young boy.

It is directed by Paula Kay Miller, a senior majoring in theater from Arizona, who said she feels the play can be a valuable learning experience for both children and adults.

The play is an experimental production done for THCA 543R, an advanced directing class in the theater and cinematic arts department, Miss Miller explained. It will be showing Friday and Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Nelke Experimental Theater, HFAC.

"Even though tragedy is involved," Miss Miller said, "the play deals with the family situation in a positive, life-oriented way."

The greatest difficulties have been with the technical aspects of light and sound, she explained, because the play involves several flashback scenes which must be clear and identifiable to the audience.

Starring in the play will be Christine Carter, Ken Beck, Courtney Brewerton and Alan Foutz.

"All in all," she added, "'Outside In' has come together well."

Acting academy signing students

The American Musical and Dramatic Academy, 2109 Broadway, New York City, is now enrolling qualified students interested in careers in the American Musical Theater.

David D. Martin, a native Texan and graduate of Baylor University, is the professional director of the Musical Academy. He won the British Drama League Award and has acted here as well as abroad.

Jan Rugger Martin, the executive director and registrar, grew up in New Jersey across from the Hudson River. At 15, she had her own teenage dance company, performing within the state, has sung and acted successfully and was a special photographer for editors of Time-Life.

Applications should be sent to the academy.
